

Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints Tithing Barn In Charleston

This barn, as was the custom then, was likely built by the Church Members of the Charleston Ward, in about 1900. They used 6"x 6"sawed native red pine timbers, for the frame, and sawed, 1" boards, by a local sawmill, for the outside siding. It was used by the Charleston Bishop, for storage, as he received hay, vegetables, chickens, pigs, etc. as "tithing in-kind," from the saints.

When the payment of tithing was changed from "in-kind," to cash donations, The Church had no more use for the barn, so they sold it to a close-by neighbor, Mr Alexander M Davis. He was glad to have it, and moved it about 2 blocks to the south, with help of neighbor horse teams. It was jacked up, and log skids were placed under it. Then teams were hooked up to the logs in an ingenious fashion and the hawl began. After it was in place, Mr Davis used the barn for many years for raising of his sheep and chickens etc.

When he passed on, his son, Barton, bought it and used it. Now Barton's son, Bruce owns it, since 23 Dec 1997. It still stand firm as an icon and part of the beautiful history of the LDS past.

Scalp Version

It is a very good idea to have a list of names of people who are interested in the project. This will help you to keep track of who is involved and who is not. It will also help you to know who to contact if you need more information. The list should include the names of all the people who are involved in the project, including the people who are not yet involved. It should also include the names of the people who are interested in the project but who are not yet involved. The list should be kept up to date and should be used to help you to plan the project.
